
Not Ready to Transform Student/Learning Supports? (But you do want to make some needed improvements!)

Here are some things our Center is ready to help you do to make immediate improvements in student/learning supports and also create readiness for system changes.

We can work with you to

- (1) establish a local continuing education initiative for a group of your colleagues who share your concerns about improving supports for students manifesting learning, behavior, and emotional problems.
- (2) establish a Leadership Team to
 - (a) map existing resources for addressing barriers to learning and teaching and reengaging disconnected students – see

>Mapping & Analyzing Learning Supports

<https://smhp.psych.ucla.edu/summit2002/tool%20mapping%20current%20status.pdf>

>An Aid for Initial Listing of Current Resources Used at a School for Addressing Barriers Learning and Teaching

<https://smhp.psych.ucla.edu/pdfdocs/listingresources.pdf>

- (b) analyze what's working, what needs strengthening, and critical gaps
- (3) develop a set of prioritized recommendations for moving forward and present the recommendations to administrators and school boards.

If you would like to pursue any of this or have other thoughts about how our Center might be of assistance, contact Ltaylor@ucla.edu .

And for more resources to aid in making improvements in student/learning supports, see the System Change toolkit <https://smhp.psych.ucla.edu/summit2002/resourceaids.htm> .

Best wishes and be well,
