How Harmful are the Changes at the Federal Level to Addressing Barriers to Learning and Teaching?

Concerned about the impact on schools and student/learning supports of changing federal policies and practices? *

Then, for posting on the Center's website, send us your perspective on:

(1) In what ways will changes in the way the federal government plays its role in the nation's education system have profound implications for students experiencing learning, behavior, and emotional problems?

(2) What do you think can be done to minimize negative outcomes for students?

We look forward to hearing from you.
